A HUTLY CONTESTED PRIZE FIGHT .- In these days of general excitement-of expecting, where he will at all times be kappy to dised collisions between troops, and of civil war und of general havoc-one scarcely expects to hear of more refined demonstrations in the shape of prize fighting. Nevertheless, during a ride into the country yesterday, a short distance from Belleville, Illinois, we stumbled upon a crowd of about five hundred men, and as many as fifty women and accurately compounded. who were watching-with the utmost pastety-two men sugaged in the mank art of pounding each other's countenances out of shape and into a jelly. The combatants were coal miners—Jim Brown and Anthony Young-and were fight g for a prize of

The crowd appeared in a high state of ex-citement, and executly the female portion, who finally beams so deeply interested as to gather layer and throw them into the ring, it for that a firm footing might be pre-ring, it and even to fan the combatants with paprons, as they were hauled to their respective corners after a well fought round. One hundred and thirty-eight rounds were fought, in two hours and twenty-five minutes. On the 138th round, Young fell to the ground without a blow, and the battle was decided. in favor of Brown. The latter was much more severely punished, however, than the former. The defeated candidate was very much grieved at the decision, and and sobs and tears declared it wasn't fair, and that he was entitled to the prize .- St Louis Republican.
